A CORNERSTONE OF COASTAL ORANGE COUNTY'S luxury homebuilding scene since its founding in 1982, RDM General Contractors blends architectural precision with unmatched craftsmanship. "We deliver the highest-quality finishes at the best possible value, transforming houses into extraordinary homes that reflect both elegance and personality," says President and CEO Christopher Lindsay, emphasizing the company's hands-on philosophy from pre-construction planning to the final finish. That collaborative approach extends to clients as well. "By meeting with homeowners each week, we ensure they stay fully informed about their project's schedule and progress," adds COO Scott Willson, highlighting RDM's dedication to transparency and trust. The company's portfolio includes landmark residences across Newport Beach, Laguna Beach and Dana Point, each of which combines artistry, innovation and durability. From raising sea walls on waterfront estates to constructing hillside homes that defy gravity, RDM's work stands as a testament to precision engineering and personal service, which has inspired a loyal following of repeat and referral clients.

"From planning to completion, craftsmanship and quality define everything we do."

Ask the Expert

What is your firm known for within the industry? RDM is known for its expertise in subterranean construction. Our firm excels in transforming challenging sites into opportunities for creative expansion—crafting custom wine cellars, guest suites or car galleries that elevate livability and value. We're fortunate to build in some of SoCal's most desirable coastal neighborhoods. From oceanfront retreats to terraced hillside residences, our work highlights a deep respect and understanding for each site's unique natural setting. Every dream home we build reflects our unwavering commitment to excellence.

What's new and next? With shifts in family dynamics and an aging population, an increasing number of our clients are seeking to incorporate Accessory Dwelling Units (ADUs) into their residences. To meet this need, we are excited to collaborate with leading architects to design single-family homes that support multi-generational living and offer future flexibility, all while incorporating energy-efficient and sustainable design principles. We recently completed the first ADU development in Newport Beach. This project was designed to seamlessly transition from a multi-generational home to a three-unit multi-family configuration, providing the homeowners with forward-thinking, long-term ownership.

LEFT Perched on a dramatic Laguna Beach hillside and embodying contemporary, coastal luxury, this terraced residence features a cantilevered pool, integrated spa and rooftop deck that capture sweeping ocean and canyon vistas. OPPOSITE: TOP Expansive pocketing doors frame panoramic Laguna Beach views, filling the open-plan living space with natural light. LEFT A sculptural glass stairwell ascends through a warm, chocolate-and-cream interior palette, where a Neolith Strata Argentum porcelain fireplace and European oak flooring create an interplay of contemporary design. RIGHT Double glass doors reveal a tranquil courtyard with a contoured planter that draws the eye toward a luminous skylight and statement chandelier.
